Contact: Janie Wechman

Q: What did you change a law, a regulation, an ordinance, a policy or other?

A: The coalition passed a Responsible Beverage Server Training ordinance.

Q: Where did the idea to make the change originate?

A: The city of Georgetown voted to go “moist” and we felt there was a need for Responsible Beverage Server Training. Our local prevention center told us about the training program.

Q: What elected or other government officials did you meet with to accomplish this change? And at what point(s) in the process did you meet with them?

A: We met with the Georgetown City Council early in the planning stages.

Q: What materials did you use to make your case that the change was necessary and would produce the desired results?

A: We described in detail the training program.

Q: Through what system/process did you make your change?

A: The changes were made through the Georgetown City Council.

Q: Who were your allies in making this change?

A: The Bluegrass Prevention Center was a strong ally.

Q: Who opposed this change?

A: Fortunately, no one opposed this change.

Q: Did you testify in front of local boards or state governing bodies?

A: We did not testify in front of any governing bodies.

Q: Did you participate in media advocacy to make your change?

A: We did not participate in media advocacy.

Q: Please describe in detail the outcome of your change.

A: The City Council passed an ordinance requiring mandatory Responsible Beverage Server Training for businesses selling alcohol.
