

Got Drugs?

Take-Back PSAs

30 seconds

- Prescription drug abuse is an epidemic in this country. One way people are getting addicted to dangerous drugs is by raiding the medicine cabinets of their friends and family. On Saturday, September 25th, DEA and its partners are operating collection sites in your community where Americans can turn in their unused, unneeded, and expired prescription medications – no questions asked. This is a free, anonymous service that will help keep your home safe and could save lives. For more information and to find a collection site near you, visit www.dea.gov
- American teenagers are abusing prescription medication at record levels. They are often getting these dangerous drugs from family and friends – and their medicine cabinets. On Saturday, September 25th, DEA and its partners nationwide will operate collection sites in your community where Americans can turn in their unused, unneeded, and expired prescription medications – no questions asked. This is a free, anonymous service that will help keep your home safe and could save lives. For more information and to find a collection site near you, visit www.dea.gov

60 seconds

- You could be a drug dealer without even knowing it. With pill abuse at record levels, addicts are looking in as many medicine cabinets as possible – maybe even yours. We can help. On Saturday, September 25, 2010, DEA and its partners nationwide will operate collection sites in your community where Americans can turn in their unused, unneeded, and expired prescription drug medications – no questions asked. This is a free, anonymous service that will help keep your home safe and could save lives. Prescription drugs treat illness and alleviate pain, but they should only be used when prescribed by a doctor. Unfortunately, these medications often end up in the wrong hands. More than 70 percent of people who abuse these medications say they get them from family or friends. Many users of street drugs like heroin start with abusing painkillers. Don't be an unknowing source. Strengthen your community and make your home safer by participating in this national initiative. For more information and to find a collection site near you, visit www.dea.gov

- Prescription drug abuse in this country is an epidemic. You could be partly to blame without even knowing it. With pill abuse at record levels, addicts are looking in as many medicine cabinets as possible – maybe even yours. We can help. On Saturday, September 25, 2010, DEA and its partners nationwide will operate collection sites in your community where Americans can turn in their unused, unneeded, and expired prescription drug medications – no questions asked. This is a free, anonymous service that will help keep your home safe and could save lives. Prescription drugs treat illness and alleviate pain, but they should only be used when prescribed by a doctor. Unfortunately, these medications often end up in the wrong hands. More than 70 percent of people who abuse these medications say they get them from family or friends. Many users of street drugs like heroin start with abusing painkillers. Don't be an unknowing source. Strengthen your community and make your home safer by participating in this national initiative. For more information and to find a collection site near you, visit www.dea.gov

