Marissa Dopp, DNP, RN, serves as the Director of Nursing for her local county health department. As health department staff, she has the pulse of the community, particularly of those residents who use health department services, which include reproductive health and wellness, child and adult immunizations and services for children with disabilities. She works with local law enforcement and EMS agencies to provide naloxone through grant funds. Marissa serves on a variety of committees and collations within the county to improve the health and well-being of the community.

Britney Ward, MPH, is the Director of Corporate and Community Health Promotion at the Fulton County Health Center, located in the rural community of Wauseon, OH. She oversees employee wellness, corporate screenings, nutrition education and the hospital-owned fitness center. Britney is the community arm of the hospital sitting on multiple coalitions and boards, working with the schools, public health, businesses, churches, law enforcement and other agencies. She resides on a horse and cattle farm and is married to her high school sweetheart with two middle school-aged children
